

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

SiloSmashers CEO Angela Drummond-Rodgers is Honored as a Finalist in the 2011 Stevie Awards for Women in Business

Fairfax, VA – October 18, 2011 – SiloSmashers, Inc., an industry-leading, strategy, management, and technology consulting firm serving the public sector, announced today that CEO Angela Drummond-Rodgers has been named as a finalist in the Stevie Awards for Women in Business, in the “Best Executive - Non-Profit or Government of Up to 100 Employees” category.

The Stevie Awards for Women in Business are the only global, all-encompassing business awards program for women executives and entrepreneurs, and the organizations they run. The awards will recognize individual women executives for their accomplishments and achievements attained from July 1, 2010 to July 1, 2011. During this time period, despite the rough economy, Drummond-Rodgers restructured the company, creating specific business units to better compete for emerging federal opportunities. She led SiloSmashers to major contract wins with the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) and the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), and she enhanced existing award-winning programs to promote employee health and wellness. She also expanded the company’s senior management team and infrastructure to prepare for future growth by adding a Chief Technology Officer and most recently a Chief Financial Officer.

“This is truly an honor to receive international recognition for our initiatives and achievements of the past year,” said Angela Drummond-Rodgers, SiloSmashers CEO. “I am committed to continuing to grow SiloSmashers through a focused human capital strategy and organizational development plan that yields new business opportunities aligned with our overall strategic business objectives.

The Stevie Award winner in each category will be determined in final judging, and announced at an awards dinner at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in New York City on Friday, November 11, 2011.
